Signature Collection Host Series

Add a fascinating new dimension to your next Windstar cruise with the distinguished guests in our Signature Collection Host Series sailings. Learn how to create picture-perfect gardens with a historical perspective from gardener and writer Anthea Guthrie. Discover the secrets behind the luscious red wines made by Tor and Susan Kenward of Tor Kenward Family Wines. Or learn how to take award-winning photographs from John Russo, portraitist to the stars. You can acquire new culinary techniques from Top Chef Hosea Rosenberg — and explore the art of Tuscan cooking with Fabio Viviani of Firenze Ostria. David Gianulias and Todd Rustman of Levendi Wines lead a fascinating lecture that combines winetasting with wealth management, while Bob and Julia Iantosca offer an inside look at a couple making distinctively different wines for Gloria Ferrer Domain Carneros and Lasseter Family Winery, respectively. Or learn more winemaking secrets from master vintners Daniel Baron of Silver Oak Cellars and Chris Figgins of Leonetti Cellar and Figgins Family Wine Estates.

Anthea Guthrie turned a love of gardening into a full-time career in 2003, earning more than 12 medals (including three golds) from the Royal Horticultural Society. Her passion for history has led her to create gardens based on the story of Ann Boleyn, a theatre garden at the world-famous Chelsea Flower Show and a Shakespearean garden at Hampton Court Palace. She is also a frequent guest on A Passion for Plants on BBC-TV.

Bob and Julia Iantosca keep the art of winemaking in the family. Since becoming Winemaker and Vice President for Gloria Ferrer Sonoma Carneros vineyards in 1984, Bob has created more award-winning California sparkling wines than any other single winemaker. Julia Iantosca, Consulting Winemaker for Lasseter Family Winery, has developed outstanding reds for small, premium wineries for 30 years. Their passions for creating unique — and notably different — wines are reflected in their lectures and winetastings.

Daniel Baron began his winemaking career in the vineyards of Sonoma County before traveling to France and working for legendary Château Petrus — an experience that shaped his approach to making wine. "In the Old World, wine was an integral part of daily life, and the pursuit of excellence was the driving force behind every decision made in the vineyard or winery," he says. "That's what I strive for as a winemaker." He returned to Napa Valley in 1982 and became the winemaker for Silver Oak's celebrated wines.

Fabio Viviani cooked his first professional dinner in Florence at 14, when he came to the aid of an ailing chef. He went on to perfect the art of Tuscan cooking with some of the area's master chefs. As Executive Chef and owner of Firenze Osteria, the award-winning Viviani brings his style of northern Italian comfort food — and molecular cuisine — to California. Fabio was a stand-out chef on Season 5 of the popular TV series, Top Chef. He recently released the Café Firenze Cookbook with friend and co-author Jacopo Falleni.

Chris Figgins learned from the best: his parents, Gary and Nancy, who put tiny Walla Walla, Washington, on the map when they founded Leonetti Cellar in 1977. As current CEO and Director of Winemaking, Chris continues the winery's tradition of producing some of the world's most sought-after reds in small, limited productions. Chris recently launched FIGGINS, an estate-grown, single-vineyard wine, and Lostine Cattle Company, grass-fed beef, to extend the Figgins Family Wine Estates experience.
